March 14, 2012 (Vienna, VA) – FUTREND has reached another monumental milestone in its corporate history. Jerry Zhou, FUTREND CEO, recently made the announcement that company has successfully been appraised as a Capability Maturity Model Integration (CMMI) Development Maturity Level 2 organization. The receipt of CMMI Maturity Level 2 demonstrates FUTREND's capabilities concerning process discipline, ensuring that existing processes are able to be maintained.

After an intense effort, FUTREND received its publicized recognition on the Software Engineering Institute's (SEI) website on March 12, 2012. "It was an intense effort. The CMMI Level 2 process touched many aspect of FUTREND business, especially in the Service Delivery areas. It brought FUTREND's quality delivery to another level. It will become the foundation for sustaining and supporting our continuous growth and expansion," Mr. Zhou comments.

The CMMI auditors, who visited for a week-long examination of the company's documented procedures, made the following comments in regards to FUTREND's global strengths:

"Executive management's endorsement of quality management is notable and demonstrated by their commitment of substantial resources to support process-driven project management and performance. This is evidenced by:

- The establishment of organizational policies and processes to guide the project's service delivery to their customers.
- The establishment and maintenance of SharePoint as part of the organization's service system to support service delivery, and the dashboard to support the data collection and storage process.
- The establishment and continued support of the Project Management Office (PMO) as a resource supporting implementation of various processes on all projects (e.g., Quality Audits, CM Baseline Audits, Service System Audits, etc.).
- The Monthly Project Reviews between the projects and executive management provide extensive reporting and communications on the performance of the projects with regard to the contract work as well as process related activities."

This major achievement crosses off a prime objective from the company's 2010 corporate strategic plan. FUTREND plans to continually strive towards improving service delivery to all its Government customers and clients and are excited at the prospect of further expanding the company's building blocks towards success.
